Fumes and concern about propane

Faulty generator forces Hyland Crest evacuation

Sixty-one residents were evacuated from Hyland Crest Seniors Citizens Home Sunday night (September 27) after the building filled with fumes from a back-up power generator. The residents and staff returned the next morning having spent the night at the Minden Community Centre.

The propane-fired generator started automatically when a hydro feeder line east of the community broke, plunging the home and surrounding area into darkness.

According to Hyland Crest administrator Gary McKnight, shortly after the generator started, an automatic alarm sounded, alerting the staff and local fire department to the problem.

Initially there was concern that the alarm had been set off by a propane leak, however, it was later determined that a faulty exhaust system had filled the home with fumes from the generator.

Two firefighters and one nursing home staff member were overcome by the fumes. Fire fighters Bob Wells and Don Stromberg were affected by the fumes when they entered the boiler room where the generator is located. A staff member, Bev Fomenko, was also overcome by the fumes. They were taken to the Minden Hospital for treatment and later released. A third firefighter Doug Schell suffered a minor injury when he slipped while climbing the emergency access stairway into the boiler room.

Minden Fire Chief Bill Hogg ordered the evacuation of the building at about 10 p.m.

While there was the smell of propane mixed with the exhaust fumes, "I just didn't know what kind of situation we had," Hogg said. "The safest thing was to remove the residents from the home." He noted that shortly after fire fighters arrived on the scene, the propane was shut off.

About 45 minutes after the evacuation was ordered, all of the residents had been removed from the building.

Ambulance personnel, fire fighters, Hyland Crest staff and volunteers were involved in the transporting the residents to the Community Centre. Those who are bed-ridden were taken by ambulance, while others were taken by buses including the home's own vehicle and one brought in from Todd Bus Lines.

As word of the emergency spread, volunteers came to the home to assist with the residents or in moving the mattresses and other supplies needed to accommodate their over-night stay at the community centre.

"The evacuation went very smoothly," McKnight said. "Members of the volunteer fire department, ambulance and nursing home staff and volunteers from the community did a great job. The residents were all bedded down in at the community centre by 11 p.m."

The residents seemed unperturbed by the emergency. Staff members report that the residents had a restful night in their temporary quarters.

The residents were served breakfast at the Community Centre and, with the help of municipal staff and a number of fire fighters, as well as Hyland Crest staff, were transported back to the home by bus.

The power outage was caused by a break in the main feeder 44,000 kv line near Bethel Church. According to Hydro spokesman Rick Kellestine, when a support arm on a pole broke, it knocked out power to three substations at Minden, Gull River (Deep Bay Road) and Kinmount. Since the break was located off a main road it took crews additional time to locate the problem and repair it. After initial repairs were completed, a surge caused when the power was turned on took out another line, leaving the area without power until about 1:30 a.m.

Ministry of Health staff met with demonstrators

Protesters told answers will be provided

by Andrew Milne

Health care workers gathered in front of Ministry of Health headquarters September 28 to protest the quality of health care in rural areas across Ontario — and to bring attention to the predicament of hospitals like the one in Minden.

The protestors were told to expect a decision on Minden's emergency hours earlier than the October 31 deadline. Ministry representatives however could not yet name a date.

The protests were sparked, in part, by a service reduction at Minden's emergency ward. Effective October 1, the ward is closed from midnight to 8 a.m. daily.

This is, however, a temporary arrangement — the hours may change at the end of October.

St. Joseph's of Peterborough, Minden's parent hospital, had been considering a plan to close the ward altogether, as of September 15, opening a nine to five walk-in clinic in the building.

The MOH, however, in meetings with St. Joseph's September 21, told the hospital it could not close the ward without doing public consultation and obtaining approval of a revised operating plan from the ministry.

St. Joseph's is therefore still running the ward, but at reduced hours. The board has until the end of October to make a decision regarding the hours after that, and must submit to the ministry by then a revised operating plan outlining the operations at the Minden facility between November and the end of the fiscal year in March.

A local body, the Acting Health Services Board, is expected to take over administration of the institution at that time.

Minden's nine-bed in-patient ward was closed in April.

Gwen Hewitt, Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) representative at Minden hospital, organized the protest.

Said Hewitt, "It went pretty well. There was a lot of media coverage. The local politicians were all at the hospital board meeting in Peterborough, but we had around 100 people there anyway... And being invited inside was a bit of a bonus."

The protestors were invited inside by minister's assistant Barbara Selkirk to state their case, and did so.

Said Hewitt, "We told them we want to be part of the process — we don't want to be shut out... And we asked for an immediate response on Minden Hospital. November 1 isn't good enough."

Selkirk responded that she believed they would have a response sooner. She could not say, however, how much sooner.

The provincial government has said that it will be implementing some of the measures recommended in the Scott report, a recent study done for the Ministry of Health, aimed at solving difficulties with health care in rural areas. The report recommends, among other things, new methods of paying doctors in rural emergency wards. Receiving fee for service rates in the often quiet night hours in rural emergency wards isn't an especially attractive proposition for physicians who might wind up working through the night shift and missing valuable office time, to be paid for treating only one patient.

Hewitt says he believes the Scott report's recommendations regarding OHIP billings are a good thing. She's not so enthusiastic about the entire report, however — particularly the recommendation made that there be no more than one emergency ward within a 40 km radius.

Said Hewitt, "When I spoke about that today, I indicated that what they needed to do is actually take a map of any area — whether it's ours or the far north or whatever — and they need to look at the radius that each hospital serves... It can't be a cut and dry measure."

The point is, said Hewitt, using the local situation as an example, that current realities often make such a rule impractical. Although the Haliburton and Minden hospitals are merely 24 kilometres apart, both have to serve geographically large catchment areas well beyond each other's 40 kilometre range — Minden serving to the south into northern Victoria county, Haliburton serving to the north.

Said Hewitt, "We had an incident this fall in which there was a young woman from Head Lake down by Norland, who had been in a Sea Doo accident, and she virtually amputated her leg... She had to come to Minden Hospital to be stabilized before being transferred... They didn't want to take her from Norland to Lindsay without treatment. So can you imagine if they'd had to go further north? If it would have been Haliburton, then they really would have had to flip a coin. As it was, we were able to stabilize her here so she could go to Peterborough to see a vascular surgeon as well as an orthopaedic surgeon. Lindsay does not have vascular surgery."

Hewitt is organizing a local demonstration at the hospital in Minden October 7 at 12:30. Everyone is welcome.

A technician from Superior Propane was called in late Sunday night to check the generator. Using equipment that can detect the presence of the gas, it was determined that there had not been a propane leak and the fumes had come from the faulty exhaust system. A representative of the generator manufacturer also arrived at 3 a.m. to examine the equipment. Electrical service to the building, disconnected as a precaution, was reconnected early Monday morning and exhaust fans were used to clear the structure of the fumes.

Fire Chief Bill Hogg said a meeting has been scheduled for later this month to work out any problems that might have become evident as a result of the evacuation. He noted that one of the problems for the fire department was that the power outage meant their paging system was not operational, which caused some delay in contacting all the firefighters.

Hogg and Hyland Crest administrator Gary McKnight both noted that the evacuation went smoothly thanks in part to the help of volunteers. "There were so many people who came to help out," Hogg said, "It is hard to express appreciation to everyone. I just hope they know their assistance was appreciated."

"The fire fighters responded in a timely and professional manner," Reeve Jeanne Anthon said last week following the evacuation. "I have heard nothing but glowing remarks for the work of the emergency crews and the community volunteers who were on hand to assist." The reeve arrived on the scene at about 10:30 p.m. prepared to help with the evacuation. However, she found the move was going so smoothly she was able to assist by talking with the residents and reassuring them.

Local control essential to keep hospital services

by Andrew Milne

Hospitals in rural areas across Ontario are currently undergoing ward closures or reductions in services similar to recent events in Minden.

A notable common denominator in many of the communities where this is taking place is the feeling that the lack of local control over the facilities is part of the problem, and part of the cause of the service reductions. This applies particularly in communities served by former Red Cross hospitals, which are now rarely under local control.

Simply put, say many, if administration of a hospital is in the hands of a board outside the community, that board is going to be that much less driven to defend and maintain services at that facility.

There are former Red Cross outpost hospitals dotted across rural Ontario. The Red Cross charity got out of the hospital business in the early 80s, and the Ministry of Health negotiated to have neighbouring hospitals in larger communities take them over. This was the case for Minden's hospital, which has been administered by St. Joseph's Hospital and Health Centre of Peterborough since the early 80s.

Burk's Falls is a small village of around 1,000 about 36 km north of Huntsville. Burk's Falls hospital, a former Red Cross outpost hospital, was taken over by the board of Huntsville Hospital in 1984. Six years later, in 1992, the hospital closed.

Says Ray Smith, a member of a coalition lobbying for better health care in the area, "They had a token membership of one person on the board of the Huntsville Hospital, and it was only a token. Certainly when the crunch came down to making a financial cut in the Huntsville Hospital, it was the easiest thing, and the quickest thing, to shut down Burk's Falls. That's the story of our demise, really."

Burk's Falls now has a Community Health Centre (CHC), a type of walk-in clinic facility that also combines other health-related services, in the place of its hospital. But the CHC does not offer emergency services, which, say many in the area, is simply unacceptable, as it leaves a 120 km gap between the nearest emergency wards in the area — Huntsville and North Bay.

In Emo, along the U.S. border west of Thunder Bay, the tiny 23-bed unit (third smallest in the province, after Minden and Haliburton), seems to have been dying in fits and starts over the past several years. Its emergency ward still runs, but at reduced hours — 10 am to 10 pm — due in part to a serious lack of available doctors similar to the situation in Minden.

For some time the ward was closed altogether. As in Minden and Burk's Falls, Emo is a former Red Cross outpost. Since 1983, it has been run by Riverside Health Care, which runs the 98 bed Fort Frances hospital, 35 km to the east.

Emo does have representation on the Fort Frances board. "But it's not enough," said one member of the Emo staff, "to have any real influence."

The reductions in service, as far as she's concerned, are serious. And persistent rumours that the hospital may soon be closed have the population on edge.

"We have," she says, "a very high elderly population here. All the older people that live in the outside area are moving to town. We have one senior citizens' housing unit that's built right onto the hospital, 40 units. Then there's another just up the street from where I live that has 20 some units. They're full with a waiting list all the time. And a lot of those people have no car. They have no way to get to Fort Francis."

Bancroft is another former Red Cross outpost, now run by the administration of the hospital in Belleville. Bancroft is having difficulties keeping its emergency ward open due to problems with the doctors staffing the hospital, and may have to close the ward or reduce its hours.

Lloyd Churchill, Bancroft reeve and warden of Hastings, believes that what is happening is unfortunate, and that if the doctors had given the new government more time to prove it was committed to solving the problem, that it might have done so. But he too says he thinks that part of the problem is the distant administration in Belleville.

Says Churchill, "I think the board has done relatively well in serving Bancroft hospital... But I'm not totally convinced that the total Belleville hospital board is totally in agreement with the necessity of keeping Bancroft hospital open. They don't realize the importance of keeping it open. They don't realize the extent to which the community depends on it. And I don't think they fully realize the amount of the work that is done there. This hospital here in town some days — from May to Labour Day weekend -- would certainly lots of times outdo Belleville Hospital for the emergencies they'd look at."

"And I don't think," he says, "they recognize the economic impact that it has on this county — not only in lost jobs at the hospital and in the health care community, but in the cottage country and the retirement country, in the people that move in to this area looking for that hospital to be there. That could have a real detrimental effect should it close."

Having local control by itself doesn't seem necessarily to be the entire solution either, as some have found. Burk's Falls did for some years have a local board administering its health facilities — but the small, local board found itself severely constrained by the Ministry of Health in what it could or could not do. And what it could not do, it soon found out, was set up anything resembling emergency services.

The facility it was running was a community health centre, as mentioned above, under the purview of a different department of the MOH than that which funds and regulates hospitals, and, it would seem, the MOH simply hasn't been helpful to the board in its attempts to restore some form of emergency service in Burk's Falls. Three years after the establishment of the centre, after several major purges in board membership, they still haven't managed to offer urgent care at the facility.

Chamber will meet with landowners about Trails & Tours initiative

The Chamber of Commerce says it and other players will be meeting with private landowners shortly regarding the Trails and Tours initiative.

Chamber manager Brian Dean said a number of landowners had expressed concerns over the initiative's effect on them following the appearance of a story on the initiative in The Times last week.

"The thing to keep in mind," said Dean, "is this is all going to take some time, and we have no intention of doing anything without consulting with the landowners first."

Dean also said he expected earlier development under the plan would emphasize upgrading organized tours more than trail development.

The meetings have not yet been scheduled.

Kinmount has big plans for Thanksgiving weekend

A studio tour has been organized to showcase the talents of Kinmount area artists and craftspersons. The inaugural Kinmount Thanksgiving Harvest Homecoming Studio Tour is slated for Sunday, October 8 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in and around Kinmount.

Along with meeting the local artists and craftspeople in their respective studios, visitors will have the opportunity to tour some of the new facilities and attractions. Among those are the Heritage Complex and Pioneer display at the Kinmount Fairgrounds; the Railway Station; the Austin Sawmill; the Heritage Park; and the newly renovated Kinmount Community Centre.

The autumn colours are expected to be at their best, so just travelling from one attraction to another will be a pleasant experience.

Accolades for evacuation helpers

Anson, Hindon and Minden deputy-reeve Lewis Stevens issued a formal statement of appreciation to all those involved in the evacuation of the Hyland Crest residents on Sunday, September 24. Fumes from the propane generator, which kicked in when the hydro service was interrupted, caused some concern.

Stevens, who was acting as chair of the council meeting Thursday evening in reeve Jeanne Anthon's absence, said that words couldn't adequately express his appreciation for the efforts of everyone concerned. He read aloud the following statement: "During the loss of hydro service on Sunday, September 24, 1995, Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home was evacuated. This was accomplished through the co-operation and efforts of several agencies and individuals from the area. The process was completed quickly and without incident.

"To the fire chief and his fire fighters, the ambulance service, the OPP, Hyland Crest staff, Anson, Hindon and Minden staff and everyone who was involved with the evacuation and return of the residents to Hyland Crest the next day, I would like to take this opportunity, on behalf of council, to congratulate you on a job well done. Thank you.

"I would also like to thank the residents of Hyland Crest for taking this inconvenience in stride."

Sun shines on Studio Tour

The sun did its best to highlight the colours in the autumn trees as thousands of visitors toured the roads of Haliburton County this past weekend. The occasion was the eighth annual Studio Tour.

Close to 40 artists in over two dozen locations across the county welcomed the visitors into their homes, workshops and galleries. The weekend offered an opportunity to see the artists and craftspersons in their working environment, to talk to them about their techniques and to purchase some one-of-a-kind items. Judging by the reactions on Saturday morning, both the artists and the visitors were pleased and excited with what they saw. On the stroke of 10, vehicles, including a number of tour buses started pulling up in front of the studios. The pace hardly slackened throughout the day.

Our photographer visited a number of studios Saturday morning and captured some of the excitement of this year's tour as seen on this page.

Lessons learned

The crisis last week at Hyland Crest has left a number of valuable lessons in its wake.

First and foremost is the fact that the emergency services, Hyland Crest staff and community volunteers worked extremely well in the transfer of the 61 residents. From all sectors there has been praise for the compassion that was shown the residents by those helping to move them from their home to the community centre.

The home's emergency plan was tested and appeared to measure up. From the time the order was given to remove the residents to the time they were bedded down in the community centre was remarkably short. Having an emergency plan like this in place for an institution like Hyland Crest is a must.

However it is also a valuable tool to have in place for the entire community with its high concentration of seniors. A similar need could arise at one of the three seniors apartment buildings or for that matter in a neighbourhood or section of the municipality. While the people in these other situations are more mobile than the residents of Hyland Crest, there would still a need to have a mobilization plan in place to provide food and emergency shelter for the temporarily displaced individuals.

The community was fortunate that the emergency was in fact not the crisis it was first believed to be and that the residents could return to their home quickly the following morning.

This real life test of the emergency plan is valuable in that it has pointed out a number of shortcomings. For example, the power outage impaired the fire department's paging system and made it difficult to contact all the members. As well, some questions have been raised about the notification procedures and whether the generator, which was the cause of the crisis, should in fact be located inside the main structure of Hyland Crest.

The most positive outcome of the crisis is that the various services and individuals involved in last Sunday's evacuation will be meeting to examine what went right and what went wrong with the procedures followed. That can only result in an improved emergency plan and greater security for those at Hyland Crest and in the community.

In the meantime, we salute everyone who helped ease the residents through the crisis last week. It was a job well done.

Thank you for love & devotion

Editor:

On behalf of the Residents of Hyland Crest I would like to thank the staff, the Minden Firemen and the municipality for the use of the Community Centre.

Sunday night there was an emergency in our home. The fire drills paid off Peter! Everything went efficiently and smoothly. It was a very large undertaking, evacuating the residents to the arena. The transfer went smoothly. The loving staff were wonderful, lugging in mattresses and putting residents to bed.

In the morning breakfast provided. Several people came and helped move their loved ones and others back to the home.

How do you say "thank you" for such love and devotion? Thank you from the bottom of our hearts for caring and a job well done!!

Lillian Harrison,
President, Residents' Council,
Hyland Crest, Minden.

Editor:

To Gary McKnight and staff of Hyland Crest and to all the volunteers:

As the daughter of one of the residents, I wish to express my sincere thanks for the efficient removal of the residents of Hyland Crest on Sunday evening, September 24, 1995 to a safe, warm place to stay during the crisis of the power outage and emergency evacuation. My Mom commented on how wonderful and caring everyone was on this "unexpected outing" as she called it.

Sincerely,
Mary Wilkins,
Kinmount

Excellent care

Editor:

On Sunday, September 24, 1995, my four year old son was experiencing respiratory difficulty. We immediately rushed him into Minden Hospital where the hospital staff promptly and efficiently provided medical attention. My son was airlifted to a Toronto hospital and was released a few days later. My family and I would like to extend our heartfelt thanks to the staff of Minden Hospital for their excellent care, and to the people of Minden who have given their time and effort to keeping this hospital open.

Sincerely,
Cory Foster,
West Hill, Ont.

Editor:

I would like to add my two cents worth to the Mountain Lake seaplane charade.

I have been a passenger of Mr. Day's on many occasions. He is also a personal friend.

Mr. Day isn't some hapless rookie with a new toy; he is a diligent, safety-conscious pilot with 24 years of commercial piloting experience and about 12,000 hours on his log book. Any accusations of unsafe procedure, recklessness or disrespect for boaters and swimmers is pure nonsense.

I grew up cottaging on Beech Lake which is an awful lot smaller than Mountain Lake. We had two very active seaplanes on our lake. We didn't throw faceless accusations at the pilots, call the OPP with inflated complaints or hire a lawyer to shut them down. In fact, we rather enjoyed their comings and goings.

This is the worst case of Not In My Backyard I've ever seen. Here is a man who works hard to make a solid living for himself in an area where unemployment is skyrocketing and all he gets back for his hard work is shaking fists and evil glares.

When he makes money he buys local fuel, local groceries and eats at local restaurants. Following a basic economic principle, that means others are (hopefully) still in business when cottagers and tourists arrive for next summer.

I am fully aware of every 20-minute flightseeing trip Mr. Day makes because he circles over our house each and every time, without fail, I wave to him.

I think this issue is ludicrous. If people need a local cause to fight for, how about something a little less selfish like illiteracy, unemployment or the ongoing hospital issues? But then, I guess the illiterate, the unemployed and the ailing aren't quite as visible as a bright orange airplane.

No problem

Editor:

My family and I have been residents of Mountain Lake for a little better than 20 years and this summer had the pleasure of taking an exciting first time adventure on a small plane that set up on our lake this spring.

This summer, the plane has flown over our home numerous times, but certainly did not cause us any problem. Now reading the local paper and seeing how this small plane is causing such a big disturbance is a laugh.

When we first purchased our home here, it was very quiet. We were the only home on our road and there was not a quarter of the cottages on our lake. During the years, our lake has become very built up, but we got used to all the motor boats, vehicles and noise and now we don't even notice the plane going over anymore.

We are just happy that a local person can make a living at home. Jobs are few and far between in Haliburton County. The plane makes no more noise than all the boats and people yelling and enjoying themselves.

All of our afternoons at the lake, we did not see the plane come unreasonably close to anyone or anything. Boaters make room for other boaters, so could we not make room for a small plane? It's called consideration. The lake belongs to everyone and everyone has a right to enjoy it.

Lucky to live in Minden

Editor:

I felt I needed to write after reading some bad publicity about our small town.

Over the past month, I have had some stressful things happen to me. A family member died quite suddenly and realizing that my family had nothing suitable to wear to a funeral, I very tearfully went shopping. In every store I visited, the staff or owners were very helpful, even to the point of holding my Visa while I checked on fit or letting me take home different sizes and bringing back whatever didn't fit my family, without charging me first.

Whatever I couldn't buy was lent to me by a friend.

The people I dealt with realized how upset I was and couldn't have treated me better.

On a lighter note, I was recently going to visit my sister, and realized I didn't have enough gasoline to travel the distance, so I pulled into the Shell station. When Greg asked me how much gas I would like, I reached down to pick up my purse and was very embarrassed to realize I had forgotten. Greg did not even hesitate, and filled my gas tank and told me to come back when it was convenient.

I have never had a problem with service of any kind in this town, but the last few weeks made me realize how lucky I am to live in Minden.

Cathy Arbour, Minden.

You gotta give these people credit

The way to get things done is not to mind who gets the credit for doing them.

Benjamin Jowett

Poor old Ben. As a classical theologian he was undoubtedly first-rate. He was easily one of the best loved Masters in the entire history of Balliol College in Oxford.

But if he's ever tried to peddle that who-cares-who-gets-credit philosophy in the movies they'd have strung him up from a lamppost at the corner of Hollywood and Vine.

Who gets credit for what is everything in Hollywood. If you don't believe me, go shell our six or eight bucks and sit through "Waterworld", the Kevin Costner epic currently inundating movie screens around the world.

Don't bother sitting through the movie. Arrive late, just in time for "the credits".

The credits for "Waterworld" are a mini-documentary unto themselves. They roll for an incredible seven minutes — and they don't just name stars and co-stars. The "Waterworld" credits sing the praises of "the chief dockmaster", the "vault manager", "trimaran co-coordinators" and some poor creatures known as "digital roto supervisors".

There are more than eight hundred individual credits immortalizing the folks who helped make "Waterworld".

—and that's for a flop. The mind shudders to think how many extra legions Costner would have needed to make a successful movie.

Back when I was a kid all you had to do was blink and you'd miss the movie credits. In the early days the credits rolled before the feature film and they kept them simple. They told you the name of the director, the producer, the leading man, the leading lady and then they told you you only had five more minutes to get your popcorn.

I can remember being mystified years ago by such credit designations as "gaffer", "grip" and "best boy". A cousin who'd played an extra in a few Hollywood movies straightened me out. "Gaffer" she explained, was a lighting technician. "Grips" were the guys who lugged the heavy movie cameras around. And "best boy" was a kind of rarified gofer who fetched coffee and anything else the grips and gaffers needed.

But then the movie credit business got complicated. In the credits to the movie "Batman Forever" you will see acknowledgements for the "Batsuit wrangler" and even a "Robinsuit wrangler".

What the hell is that?

I can see they might want to have somebody specifically in charge of seeing that Batman's cape doesn't get wrinkled and Robin's fly stays zipped up—but wrangler? My dictionary defines wrangler as "a cowboy... esp. in charge of saddle horses".

Never mind — it gets weirder. "Batman Forever" also gave a credit line to a "greensman", a "patcher" and—my favourite: a "hair puncher".

The only person I know who could use a hair puncher is convicted-felon-turned-boxing-impressario Don King — but he doesn't act.

At least not in the movies.

Movie credits have gotten more complicated because films are a lot more technical than they used to be. Half the movies on the screen these days would be laughed out of the theatre if it wasn't for the special effects. Naturally, the people responsible for those special effects think they deserve a pat on the back too.

Plus it's a form of Hollywood currency. Anyone who can point to their name in the credits for, say, Rocky One through Twenty-Three — probably isn't going to have trouble landing a job on Rocky Twenty-Four.

Still the credit business is getting pretty silly. There's a movie called "Carrington" coming soon to a theatre near you. After it's over, when the credits roll, you will see a credit for "honeywagon driver".

A honeywagon driver is the guy who brings in and removed those Johnny-On-The-Spot portable toilets they use on location.

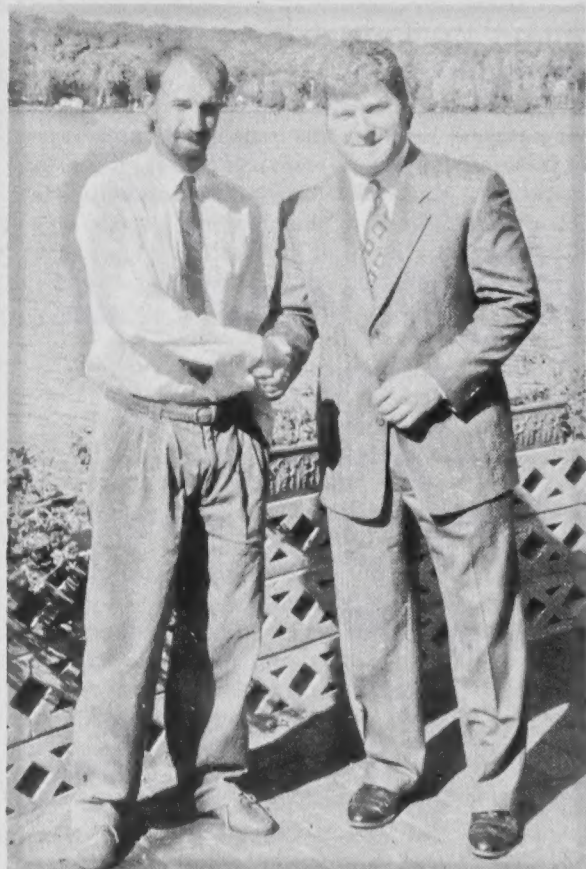

For some of the movies I've seen lately, the honeywagon driver should get top billing.

CONGRATULATIONS

Victoria-Haliburton MPP Chris Hodgson recently offered congratulations to Doug Shaw, above, on the opening of his business Peace of Mind Security. Doug, a life-long resident of the Highlands, plans to carry out weekly patrols of his clients' properties to deter break-ins. He will also conduct a product identification inventory, recording serial numbers and other identify marks of items that might be stolen. This could assist in recovering the property. "The period between Thanksgiving and May 24 weekend is when most of the break-ins take place," Doug commented. "There are fewer people on the lakes and an alarm sounding where no one can hear it is of little value." The weekly patrols will also allow Doug to alert property owners to problems arising from fallen trees, power outages or a heavy snow load. Peace of Mind Security is a division of Douglas Shaw Enterprises Inc.

HOT STUFF

Glaze 'n Fire is the name of a new ceramics and greenware service which opened in September on the Davis Lake Road off Highway 35, south of Minden. Operated by Deb and Don Grozelle, Glaze 'n Fire provides pick-up and delivery services for greenware and firing. They also plan to hold occasional seminars for those interested in learning the art of ceramics. Good luck on this new venture!

DEAL INKED WITH POLARIS

You may have noticed over the past couple of weeks that Kushog Lake Marine has added a new name to its product line. Owners Bruce and Brenda Newell are now authorized dealers for the Polaris line of snowmobiles. The couple took over the operation of Kushog Lake Marine earlier this year and report an excellent opening summer and expect it to carry over to the winter, especially with this latest addition.

WEDGEWOOD MARINA

It must have been a good year all round in the marine business, as Doug and Lynda Colborne have broad smiles on their faces. The owners of Wedgewood Marina have introduced a staff incentive program that has paid off for them and their customers. You may have noticed staff members featured recently in "Employee of the Month" announcements in this newspaper. Congratulations to Doug and Lynda and their staff for putting their best foot forward and reaping the rewards of good customer service.

High School football

Junior Redmen bow to Wildcats

A big, physical junior Weldon football squad outscored the HHSS junior team 29-12 Friday in Haliburton.

"We could have beaten them," said coach Bruce Griffith, "but we were back to our old tricks. We fumbled four times in the first half, and that really hurt."

A few penalties didn't help the Haliburton team's cause, either.

In spite of that, Griffith said there has been some improvement over the first game of the season a week earlier.

"We ran the ball well on offense," he said. "We'd march it down field and then fumble. But, that's junior football."

Griffith said quarterback Greg Simmons had a good game. Simmons scored one of the Redmen's touchdowns. Fullback Logan Percy scored the other major.

The coach said that one of the highlights was a big passing play to Regan Sisson for a gain of 22 yards.

Griffith acknowledged that Weldon has a good team, but he said, "The next time we play it'll be a different story."

The Redmen will be in Lindsay tomorrow to tangle with the LCVI Spartans.

"I promised the team that we'd win that one," Griffith said with a chuckle. "They need a win."

Billings and Russell take Autumn Open titles

Ideal fall weather conditions made it a great day for participants in the 12th annual Times Autumn Open Golf Tournament. The event was held at the Haliburton Highlands Golf Club Sunday (September 24).

Bev Billing carved another notch in the men's low gross trophy, finishing the 18 hole tournament with an impressive 78.

Betty Russell led the ladies' contingent with low gross score of 96.

Capturing low net honours was Norm Anderson with a 70, while Elaine Blakey took the ladies' low net honours with a 73.

This group of trophy winners was followed by: low gross: Fred Whithead-79 (Fred was visiting from Collingwood); Steve Stoughton-80; J.D. Bishop-82; and Brian Foster-83. Clara Vuksic shot a 96, and through the tie-breaking system was second low gross among the ladies.

The runners up in the low net included: Bill Mulholland, with a 73; Dave Ablett, Mike Vuksic, and Gary Lanican, each with a 74.

Following the tournament, the golfers retired to Birch Point Lodge for a delicious turkey supper and the awarding of prizes.

Thanks to the generosity of a number of local businesses, every golfer was called up and went home with a prize. Organizer Keith Stephenson expressed special appreciation to Halco Electronics and Carnarvon Building Supplies for their assistance with the prizes.

Tournament sponsor Jack Brezina, publisher of The Times, expressed the appreciation of all participants for the great organizing job done by Keith and Donna Stephenson of Haliburton Highlands Golf Club.

The Times whips Hartwick Construction 11-4

by Jerry Grozelle

Four was the popular number in the opening of the Minden Men's Hockey Association season September 25. Five of the six teams scored four goals. Two of the games ended in 4-4 ties, but in the third game, four wasn't good enough for a win.

KDD 4, Westside 4

Kountry Double D held a one-goal lead three times during the first of three games last Monday evening at the Minden arena. By the end of the first period KDD had scored twice and Westside had rebounded to knot the score. Westside went ahead 3-2 early in the second half, but KDD notched two in a row to regain the lead. Westside netted the last goal of the game to salvage the tie.

"Newfer" Burk paced the KDD attack with a hat trick. Tran LaRue scored the single and added one assist. Paul Mayo picked up three assists and single help-

Oldtimers' hockey league needs more 35-plus players

Tuesday nights from 9 to 10 p.m. at the Minden arena have been reserved for 35 and over oldtimers' hockey.

This is a non-contact, recreational hockey league, the aim of which is to provide some exercise and fun for the players.

The league has been in existence for five or six years, according to Dorion Malloy, a league spokesman. He says the league is trying to increase the number of players.

Attendance varies from 10 to 15 per night.

Anyone interested in participating should contact Dorion Malloy at 286-4667.

ers went to Glenn Hall and Fraser Rogers.

Doug Schell scored twice for Westside, while John Hewson and Tom Haley potted one apiece. One assist each went to Haley, Andy Campbell and Hewson.

Stamp 4, Home 4

Sid Stamp Fuels and Home Hardware also battled to a 4-4 deadlock. The 1-1 tie at the end of the first period was a premonition of things to come.

Stamp drew first blood, with Home netting the equalizer before the first frame ended.

Home jumped into the lead briefly in the second. But the Stamp crew rebounded with two in a row to take over the lead at 3-2. From that point on, Home was forced to play catch-up hockey, coming back from a one-goal deficit twice to earn the tie.

Dennis McKee was involved in all of the Stamp scoring. He notched two markers and assisted on the other two. Steve McCracken and Scott Bailey were the other sharpshooters. Bailey also picked up a pair of assists and one each went to Ivan Ingram, Bern Berry and Garry Gilligan.

Dave Hartwick netted two of the Home Hardware goals, with Ron May and Ben Manuge scoring one each. Single assists went to Tom Miscio and Charlie Teljeur.

Times 11, Hartwick 4

What they lacked in manpower (half a dozen skaters and the goalie) The Times squad made up for in scoring punch. The Times led 5-1 at the end of the first half and outscored Hartwick Construction 6-3 in the second half on the way to a convincing 11-4 victory.

Jamie Dollo was the sharpshooter of the game, notching six goals and three assists to pace the Times attack. Craig Crowe helped the winning cause with one goal and six assists. Jeff Black added a goal and four assists to the tally. Andy Schollig notched a goal and two assists, Jarrett Campbell had one goal and one helper and Craig Smith scored a goal.

Dean Sisson, Eldon Bull, Scott Hamilton and Greg Hurre were the Hartwick snipers with one goal apiece. Hamilton, Sisson and Scott Nesbitt picked up one assist each.

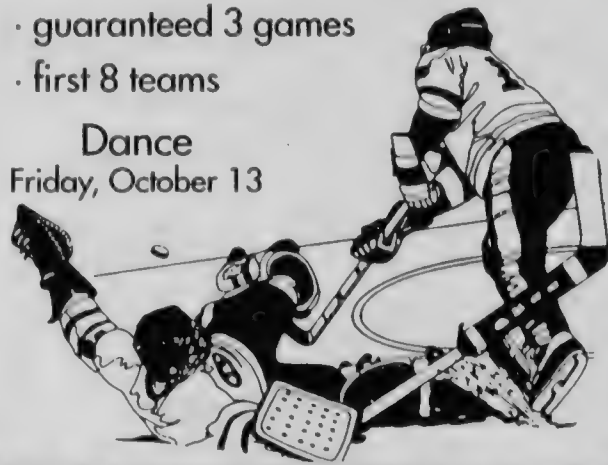

The Minden Men's Hockey Association plays three games every Monday, starting at 8, 9 and 10 p.m.

Junior Redmen soccer team shaded 1-0 by Spartans

by Jerry Grozelle

When a soccer game ends in a 1-0 score it is anybody's game. That's how HHSS junior boys soccer coach Dan LaPierre feels about a 1-0 loss to the Lindsay Collegiate Spartans last Tuesday afternoon in Haliburton.

"They played a very good game," LaPierre said. "They held it scoreless until the last three minutes of the game."

That's when the Spartans scored the tie-breaker.

"LCVI put a good shot in," LaPierre said. "It was well-earned. It wasn't a cheap one."

LaPierre said that the LCVI team has beaten I.E. Weldon, the team that defeated the Redmen 9-0 in the season opener. So, he is pleased with the progress the Redmen are making.

"It's quite a vast improvement," LaPierre said. "Everyone played well. It was a good, consistent team effort all the way through."

LaPierre said that goalie Andrew Wagg "had a very good game." He also singled out Konan Wendt, who is "back to his old self again after recovering from an injury."

"Our front line has improved incredibly," LaPierre said. "They attack the net very well and they had a couple of perfect opportunities."

The coach said that in the first game, when the Redmen got a goal against them, they fell apart.

"This game, they played scoreless to the last three minutes, got a goal against them and within 30 seconds they had the best shooting for themselves. They just marched it down the field and took a good shot at the goalie and it was just luck that it didn't go in. The goalie was down on his side and a defender got in front of the kick and knocked it to the goalie, who grabbed it. A little bit harder and it would have gone by the defender."

LaPierre said that demonstrates an increase in confidence in the Redmen.

"They're starting to look like a soccer team and they're in there with anybody," he said.

The coach added that his team is quickly developing the skills to be a contender.

"There's going to be some really good soccer players coming out of this group," LaPierre said. "It's amazing, when you stop and think. Some of these guys have never really played soccer before. They've got three games under their belts and they're starting to look as good, team-wise, as guys who have been playing since they were seven years old. If this group goes right through to senior, you're going to see a Redmen team dominating the league, in my opinion anyway."

Boys High School soccer

Solid effort earns senior Redmen a 3-0 victory over Lindsay Collegiate

by Jerry Grozelle

A "good solid effort", as coach Peter Bertelsen described it, resulted in a 3-0 win for the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School senior Redmen soccer team. The Redmen scored all three goals in the first half and switched into a defensive mode for the second half to down the visiting Lindsay Collegiate Spartans.

Ryan Goodall scored the first goal about 10 minutes into the first half. Jason Corby notched the other two 10 and 15 minutes later.

The senior team was bolstered by a couple of juniors, who were recruited to replace seniors who were unable to play.

Bertelsen praised the juniors for their effort, especially Konan Wendt, who played the full junior game and then the entire senior game on defense.

"We were short a couple of players so we had some junior players come up," Bertelsen said. "Konan Wendt played the whole game on defense, which is exceptional for a junior."

"We don't usually put any juniors who play with us on defense. A mistake on defense costs a lot more than a mistake on forward," Bertelsen explained. "He played the entire game at left defense and he did a great job."

Bertelsen said the game was an "outstanding team effort" with a solid defense.

"We really controlled the entire game," the coach said. "The second half, we played very defensively to preserve the win."

The win was an important one for the Redmen. It keeps their hopes for a playoff berth in the Kawartha West finals alive.

"With this win, we still have a shot at getting into the playoff finals for Kawartha West," he said. "Hopefully this will boost the team's attitude and confidence."

The team will need as much confidence as it can muster for this Wednesday's game when the Redmen will travel to Lindsay to take on the undefeated Weldon Wildcats.

Concerns over aggregate extraction move north

by Andrew Milne

It's not much to look at, unless you really know what to look for. A small patch of soft, springy earth covered in thick green mosses, small cedar trees growing through it, the late summer sun filtered through their scale-like needles.

The brush is extremely thick, almost impassable. On days with a little less wind, blackflies and mosquitoes would be gathering in swarms by now, carrying off anyone foolish enough to come here with a few square inches of uncovered skin.

Underfoot, the earth is wet, and very soft. Carol Yawney and Gordon Smith move gingerly, in places threading their way along rotting logs still solid enough to keep their rubber boot-clad feet from sinking too far into the muck.

This little patch of wet earth, however, modest as it may appear, was recently at the centre of a lengthy conflict — Yawney, Smith, and other neighbouring landowners on one side; a gravel pit developer on the other.

A few hundred metres away, across a small sunlit pond, is the gravel pit itself. Owned and run by a major aggregate company, the pit is a fairly modest operation — a wayside pit, in the language of planners. It's intended only for local use — refurbishing and construction of local roads. In fairness, as gravel pits go, it isn't much.

The gravel mined there comes from an esker — a narrow, serpentine mound of loose rock and sand left on the surface of the shield when the glacial river which put it there disappeared with the retreat of the glaciers at the end of the last ice age.

Next to and below the esker is the pond....across the pond, the wetland.

Too close for comfort? The gravel cones of a major limestone quarry loom on the edge of a nearby provincially significant wetland.

Limestone plains and the Niagara Escarpment

What mining aggregates has to do with wetlands in the first place is a rather involved story — and a rather different story, depending on where those aggregates are mined.

Haliburton county is actually at the edge of two vastly different kinds of terrain — and two vastly different sets of problems concerning aggregate mining.

To the south, in Victoria county and Carden township, are the flat, level plains of the Great Lakes Lowlands. The rock here is primarily relatively young sedimentary limestone and shale, laid down in flat layers on the bottom of a shallow inland sea. These far north lowlands provide grazing land of reasonable quality, though conditions are a little too rough to make raising plant crops here viable. Further south, in warmer conditions, this plain becomes the bread basket of Ontario — the flat, fertile tobacco and fruit country around the shore of Lake Ontario.

To the north, in Haliburton and Muskoka, is by far, the rougher topography of the Canadian Shield. The rock one sees on the surface here is the oldest rock on earth — hard metamorphic structures — rock distorted by immense heat and intense pressure, the roots of ancient mountains, worn gradually away over time, and scraped bare of virtually all soil during the last ice age. Farming of any kind here is almost entirely out of the question, except for a in few relatively flat, fertile flood plains.

To the south, limestone is king. A relatively soft, easily crushed rock, it's currently the preferred material for building highways, and the only material — where it's pure enough and hard enough — for making concrete. Any location where there's relatively little soil on top of the rock is a potential location for a quarry. Developers drill in, and blast the rock loose from the edges of their quarries with explosives, sometimes cutting holes as deep as 150 feet in three successive 'lifts' or layers.

To the north, there is no limestone. Road builders here make use of sands and gravels left in eskers and moraines on the top of the rock, and concrete is brought in from elsewhere. The local material is often marginal in quality, but if it's close enough to the road that's being built, the developers can mine it and crush it more cheaply than they can haul in material from the south. A few scattered operations actually crush the hard rock of the shield itself to make road building materials — it's an expensive process, but gradually becoming more popular, since there are health concerns associated with the dust that rises from crushed limestone.

Ecological concerns associated with aggregate mining on the limestone plains go back thirty years now, to the sixties, when people started noticing how intensely development was concentrating on the Niagara escarpment, in the London area.

The escarpment is a vast, circular tilted ridge of limestone running through the northern United States and southern Ontario. It's particularly attractive to developers because the limestone in the escarpment is generally close to the surface and of excellent quality.

Linda Pim is a member of the Niagara Escarpment Commission, a body formed to protect the escarpment.

Says Pim, "There's a part of the 401 west of Toronto, where you can see a big gap in the escarpment which has literally been quarried out. This became a highly visible symbol in the late 1960s for the fact that this resource was not being protected. That was one reason the Niagara Escarpment Protection Plan was originally passed."

One of the concerns related to the often intense aggregate development in limestone country was the effect on wetlands — areas of damp earth which are often rich in biodiversity, highly fertile, and often important stops for migratory waterfowl. Large quarries can consume vast quantities of water to wash the material, and to keep dust down. And the deep holes in the bedrock, some fear, could easily suck up a great deal of water, leaving wetlands high and dry. Besides this, there is the dust and noise associated with the quarries — which could be rough on plant and animal life in the wetlands.

All of this is of some concern, particularly since due to urban sprawl and farming practices, around 70 percent of the area of the original wetland habitat in southern Ontario has already been destroyed. Furthermore, aggregate development, like urban sprawl, often cuts

High School footballSenior Redmen earn decisive 54-7 win over I. E. Weldon Wildcats

by Jerry Grozelle

The senior Redmen football team romped to a 54-7 victory over the I.E. Weldon Wildcats of Lindsay Friday in Haliburton.

Mike Bradley scored the first touchdown on a 65 yard run. It was converted by Kevin Morissette.

That was the only scoring in the first quarter of the game.

Morissette completed a 16-yard pass to Tim Stouffer in the second quarter and he also added the one-point convert. Then, Morissette took the ball across the Weldon line himself from the nine yard line. He missed the convert, but at the half, the Redmen led 20-0.

The third quarter was scoreless, but, as Redmen coach Gary Brohman says, the floodgates opened in the last period.

Weldon opened the scoring in the fourth with a 40-yard touchdown run. The TD was converted and the score was 20-7.

The Redmen took control after that, with Bradley notching two more touchdowns and Mike Hartwick crossing the line with two Tds. Hartwick's second was a 75-yard sprint to the end zone. Morissette converted three of the four fourth-quarter TDs.

"Offensively, they (the Wildcats) did a good job of holding us for a while," Brohman said. "In the fourth quarter, I think we just wore them out."

Brohman said that, defensively, Colin Klages, Aaron Tomlinson, Bill Koz and Jeff Wray played well. He also commended offensive linemen Simon Reid, Dan Selby, Paul Johnson, Ryan Reessor, Ryan Ladurantaye and Quentin McCormack for their excellent blocking.

"We have a very good offensive machine going for us right now," Brohman said. "We've just got to make sure we don't get complacent."

The Redmen will take on the Lindsay Collegiate Spartans tomorrow in Lindsay.

We are off to a great start this season. I will be reporting weekly on the achievements made by each bowler and news about upcoming events and the results of out efforts. On Sunday, September 24 we participated in a Home and Home series with Lakefield Lanes. This is a total pins over average tournament for Smurfs, Pee Wees, and Bantams and the first half will be played Sunday, October 15 in Minden. On Sunday, October 1, we had our Bring a Buddy Tournament, results to follow. Next will be the Golden Age-YBC Pee Wee Tournament.

I will also report on those bowlers who have earned high score awards. We have a large list at the beginning but the list will get smaller as the awards get harder to obtain.

If this sounds like fun to any person under 19 please give County Bowling Centre a call and we will give you more information.

Barrie Martin fills board vacancy

by Andrew Milne

The board of education has appointed Barrie Martin to fill the vacancy on the board.

The vacancy opened up when John Munro, the trustee representing Sherborne et al, resigned from the board this summer. Munro has been posted by his employer to another position, outside the Haliburton County region.

Martin currently lives in the West Guilford area, but lived in Dorset for five years. He has also worked at the Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre, in Sherborne township, for 20 years now.

Martin first became involved with school board politics about a year ago, as a member of the then newly formed Victoria Street Parent Advisory Committee.

The board heard submissions from applicants for the position at the regular board meeting September 26. Martin was informed of their decision the next day.

He has never run for office on the board before, though he says he did consider it in the last election.

"I decided then that I'd rather put in my input at the school level," he said, "through the parent advisory committee."

He expects, he says, his experience from working on that committee will prove useful in sitting on the board.

Martin also has education-related experience from his work. The Frost Centre is an educational facility, doing in-house training of Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) personnel, as well as providing educational programs on natural resources issues for school groups, educators, and others.

Martin said he hoped he would be able to represent the people of Sherborne township well, and said he would be looking for opportunities over the next few days to connect with them, through school and community related events.

Said Martin, "I'm looking forward to representing the people in Sherborne, and I'm looking forward to working with this board.... There are a lot of challenges on the horizon, and whether it's the amalgamation issue or the fiscal challenges that we have, those are all going to be interesting decision making processes."

"Haliburton County," he continued, "has been a very good place to live — we've been living here 20 years, and I just feel an obligation to give something to the county. That's one of my reasons for applying for the job in the first place. It's also because of that interest in education, and the desire to participate in the decisions that are being made for my children and for everyone's children."

Due to the recent budget constraints implemented by the Conservative government, C.H.A.C.E. Resource Centres regrettably announce reduced service hours effective December 4, 1995.

Quarry development a costly process

into viable agricultural land in southern Ontario.

As part of a response to these concerns, the MNR and the MOEE control aggregate developments in limestone country through the Aggregate Resources Act. Under the act, aggregate developers are required to draw detailed site plans describing the process of extraction, and the process of rehabilitation, and to submit them to the MNR for approval. The rehabilitation — replacement of the original top soil and seeding with vegetation — is mandatory.

Not everyone is especially impressed with the results of the Act, however.

Eric Salmond is one of the founders of the Foundation for Aggregate Studies, one of the earlier groups to take up the cause of controlling aggregate development in southern Ontario. Says Salmond, "The industry says it can rehabilitate back to prime agricultural land. But there are precious few sites anywhere that are back to anything like the original agricultural production. Most of the sites have been rehabilitated back to sanitary landfill, or parks, or golf courses, or resort areas, which is not the same as the prime agricultural land that we had before... They've sort of pulled the wool over the public's eyes; said that you can rehabilitate this stuff given time. And of course it takes time. The problem is they don't hold onto the land long enough."

Salmond is also rather cynical about the role of the MNR in controlling aggregate developments. The ministry, he says, is far too pro-development, and the laws and OMB processes far too sympathetic to the aggregates industry. He points to the series of maps done by the Ministry, at public expense, to identify commercial grade aggregate deposits across the province. The aggregates industry and highway building lobby, he says, are extremely powerful, very organized, very difficult to challenge. The government policy now, he says, is that it is in the provincial interest that developers be allowed to mine as closely as possible to their market — even if it means opening up another pit and destroying that much more land, when existing pits still contain material. Who, he asks, does this serve?

Developers, however, contend that the process of getting approval for a quarry is no bed of roses for them either.

Ingram Wessel, a relatively small operator, runs a small pit in the Somerville area, in northern Victoria county. He recently applied under the Aggregate Resources Act to develop a quarry in the area.

The Ministry didn't have a problem with that. The local citizenry, as Wessel tells it, did.

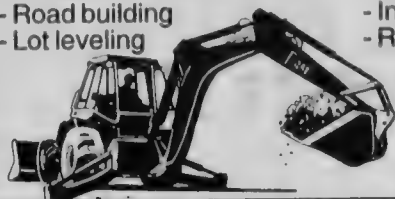

A recent OMB decision, he says, left him unsure of where to go from here. He had proposed an 80 metre setback along an edge of the property adjacent to rural residences. The county had insisted on 300 metres. The OMB decision, he says, refused to rezone, but didn't state whether the 300 metre setback was reasonable or not.

When he began the process, his consultants had told him to expect to spend around $30,000 on plans and applications. Now, $50,000 and several years into it, he's not sure how much more it's going to cost him, or whether applying with revised plans is going to do him any good.

"You have no idea what to budget," he says. "When we got into it, I never dreamt that we'd get into the likes of this... We're only a small company, but we make jobs. We have the drillers and blasters coming in. I have a crushing crew that comes in. We have employees of our own — three right now plus myself. I think the county should be supporting this sort of thing."

The conflicts are complex, lengthy and they're moving north. With a moratorium on new gravel pits imposed in the Niagara escarpment area, aggregates developers are looking further afield for the material, and that means pressure on northern Victoria and Carden townships — both of which are really only a stone's throw from the Toronto area, where the road building is most intense. There are a number of new quarries proposed in tiny, rural Carden township even right now, and more on the way. Protests and OMB hearings are becoming more and more common.

Dennis Simmons is aggregate resources officer for the MNR. It's his job to review site plans for gravel pits and quarries in the aggregate plan area, and to make sure the operators are sticking by their plans, operating to keep the dust and noise down, doing their rehabilitations properly and on schedule.

Simmons is sympathetic to community concerns in some cases. He notes that concerns in Carden related to the heavy truck traffic on the rural roads are probably entirely valid.

He has concerns of his own related to wetlands protection. A quarry in the Carden area, he says, has been located right next to a provincially significant wetland. The developer's hydrogeological studies say it won't hurt the wetland, but Simmons can't say he's sure what that means — it's hard to know how predictive the studies are.

He gets impatient, however, with some of the objections people raise to the quarry developments.

"We do have to get the material from somewhere," he says.

Swamping up — wetlands and aggregates in the shield

The case is somewhat different in the shield.

First of all, as mentioned above, there is a lot less pressure to develop aggregates in the shield — there are fewer of them, and the scattered deposits are generally of low commercial value. Furthermore, the pits don't get nearly as deep as the huge limestone quarries of southern Ontario.

Partly for these reasons, the Aggregate Resources Act does not apply to Haliburton county. Starting a pit or a quarry here is a somewhat simpler process, usually only involving a rezoning, and, should there be objections, an OMB hearing.

There are, however, ecological impacts — though of an entirely different nature — here too.

In the shield, say ecologists, the problem isn't a lower water table. It's a higher one.

Orie Loucks is a renowned American ecologist, with roots in the Haliburton area. He's seen the wetland east of Carnarvon. He testified at the Ontario Municipal Board hearing into the rezoning for the gravel pit that the wetland may indeed be in need of protecting, and the gravel pit might well threaten it.

In the shield, as mentioned, aggregate developers are looking for the scattered sand and gravel strewn on the surface by glacial action. Some of these deposits — like the one in Carnarvon, are relatively high areas — headlands — next to relatively low wetlands.

That, says Loucks, can be trouble.

Simply put, says

Loucks, what can happen in a situation like this — and something which has happened in countless similar cases — is that after the removal of vegetation on the top of the gravel deposit, the water flow to the wetland can increase substantially.

Says Loucks, "Three fourths of all the water from all (more on page 23) the rainfall and the snowmelt that we get returns to the atmosphere through the transpiration of vegetation. The vegetation that's on a landscape, whether it's crops or forest is the number one means of drainage... So if you have an aggregate operation that's maybe ten acres to fifty acres and you have removed all the vegetation from that, then the transpiration is reduced to whatever will evaporate directly from the sand or gravel or whatever is left in the bottom after a rain event."

The water has to go somewhere. Instead of returning to the atmosphere, it is now more likely to flow laterally through the earth — into adjacent low-lying areas — the wetland. The increased rate of flow also means it's likely to pick up more material — particularly phosphorus — from the soil. Phosphorus levels in the wetland then increase, throwing off the regular ecological cycles in the wetland.

What happens from there, says Loucks, is something you can see all over the shield, wherever vegetation has been removed — even along roadsides. A relatively dry, possibly seasonal cedar swamp turns into a far more wet reed swamp. The mix of species that had occupied the habitat changes, usually simplifying somewhat.

It's not necessarily a disaster, he says, nor is it necessarily irreversible. Given time, possibly decades, the habitat may return roughly to its original state, as new drainage routes develop.

But, says Loucks, that's not necessarily the point. If the landowners or the community value that cedar swamp, and don't want cattails, they probably do have a right to prevent the process. The effect of the aggregate operation on the swamp is therefore an economic externality of gravel pit development — a cost you don't see on the bottom line. He's just given a speech to the US senate on exactly this subject, and, he says, it comes down to property rights.

"We're beginning to see," he says, "the externalities of gravel extraction, at least for adjacent property owners. In a time when everyone is concerned about property rights, what we're seeing are the downstream people beginning to articulate their right to not have their cedar swamp converted to cattails. Just as the aggregate owners — the people who own the gravel pit — say it's their right to dig the gravel."

Community responsibility and responsible development

In the wetland, Smith gently, carefully pulls back a piece of soil, a few metres from the shore of the pond. Underneath is a network of threadlike roots — golden in colour, spreading in all directions through the damp, dark sod.

Carol Yawney and Gordon Smith, in the wetland east of Camarvon: cumulative effects and community responsibility.

This, says Smith, is a plant called Goldthread — Coptis groenlandica (Coptis trifolia in some texts) to biologists. And it's just part of a tapestry of reasons he and Yawney went to the trouble of challenging the construction of the gravel pit across the pond.

The plant isn't rare, and it's not just the plant he's worried about, says Smith.

Says Smith, "The point is to look at this as part of a continuous system. The Goldthread is part of what makes this ecosystem what it is. With all these little roots it breaks up the soil, allows oxygen to penetrate... That attracts other plants — establishes the soil for those plants, sets up a suitable environment."

Smith is a naturopath, and has taught herbal medicine. He lives and practices on a neighbouring plot of land. He knows the plants in this swamp by their medicinal importance.

Yawney, also involved in the OMB hearing to contest the development of the pit, is an anthropologist who teaches at York University. She has a house across the road from the wetland.

Yawney admits that, as with most people, she got involved out of concern for effects on her own land — particularly on her well. She had heard concerns related to quarries in southern Ontario, and was afraid the rather expensive hole drilled next to her house would go dry.

But as she got into the process, she says, and got to know more about the ecology of wetlands, she began to see that this really was and should be the main concern.

Says Yawney, "It became a kind of a community responsibility issue. I want everyone else to have this knowledge too, and start thinking 'Yeah, I live in Haliburton County. I don't just live in this little piece of property — and oh yeah I've got a future here.' I hope people will start looking at the tension between sustainable development and appropriate technology on the one hand and economic initiatives that undermine that. And then I started to look at all the other connecting properties and this notion of cumulative effect, which isn't taken into account in law yet because the law is always lagging behind where people's concerns are."

Development must be done carefully

The point is, says Yawney, that in Haliburton county, more than in most places, the economy is actually highly reliant on the beauty of the country. Actions that degrade or damage that beauty, she says, can't be taken in advisedly. And she's not convinced that development in this county is always done advisedly.

She notes that the county seems to have shelves full of studies and papers that tell it what should be perfectly obvious — that development has to be carried out carefully, with forethought, and in coordinated ways that minimize environmental damage. However, for whatever reason, whether from constant pressure from developers or a relatively narrow concept of self-interest on the part of local governments, the studies don't seem to be doing much more than collecting dusts.

Smith concurs. He's amused by the notion that the provincial ministries' regulations really assure that development occurring here is sustainable, and logical. Yes, he says, there's an approval process. But he's not sure it's strict enough, not sure he believes violations to environmental protocols are enforced firmly enough.

Says Smith "I like to call it 'Where the rubber stamp hits the road.', which is what, too often, actually happens... This area had been zoned an EP (environmental protection) zone. It isn't now. I asked the MNR how this happened."

"They looked at me," he says. "and said, 'We just changed it'."

Says Yawney, "People say oh the Ministry of Natural Resources or the Ministry of the Environment have these guidelines, and we're conforming to these guidelines. Well it's a whole process as to how guidelines are set and are they appropriate to all times and all circumstances... our concern was that the guidelines are not good enough."

Yawney, who studies Caribbean development in her research for York, says that after her experience she sees remarkable similarities in Haliburton county's culture and economy — there's the same need here, she says, for the community to regulate development internally, to control its own economy, to develop long-term goals.

Says Yawney, "You can see underdevelopment is a process that goes on. You can't shoot yourself in the foot. You don't want to live in a segregated society where there's little pockets where the tourists go... You don't want a geographical polarization. You don't want real rich parts of the county and then deprived parts of the county."

The answer, finally, say both Yawney and Smith, is to get involved. The regulations do nothing if there is no will on the part of the community to see that they are enforced.

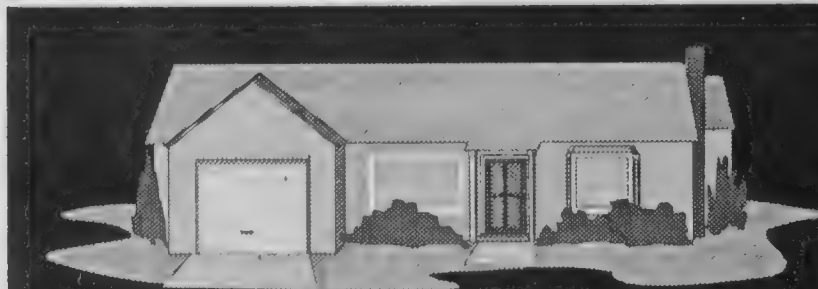

They're both amused at the response their actions got them. There is a strong urge in any community, says Yawney, not to rock the boat, and getting a name as a troublemaker didn't really surprise her much.

They don't quite call what they got for their troubles a victory. In the end, the developer was told to go ahead with the pit, but to do some rehabilitation, much as would be done under the Aggregate Resources Act in the south, and to increase the setback from the wetland.

They're not sure what to make of it. The deadline for the rehabilitation approaches, and as yet, they say they haven't seen anything happening.

In any case, they're glad they did what they did. The process was long, traumatic, and frustrating.

Says Yawney, "You really do have to go beyond the Not in My Backyard mentality, and you have to think locally and you have to think globally... It sounds catchy, but because professionally I work in that international perspective, I can't come up here and escape it — I live here and it's the same dynamic."

Internet access on the way

County residents will have two new options to "surf the net" by year's end

by Andrew Milne

Haliburton county users will have not one, but two ways to connect to the internet as of the end of this year.

KawarthaNet, a non-profit service setting up in Peterborough, expects to have local numbers for connection in Victoria and Haliburton counties by the new year.

Halco Electronics in Haliburton expects to have a commercial service in place by November 1.

Halco will be setting itself up as a full service provider — providing internet e-mail, usenet, FTP, telnet, full SLIP connections, and World Wide Web service. The domain address will be halhinet.on.ca.

Users will have a choice of connection packages, depending on their expected use. At the bottom end, strict e-mail users expecting to use less than 10 hours in a year can hook up for $40.

At the upper end, users can buy a block of hours as large as 180 hours, for $149, and have up to three months to use them.

Halco will start with ten lines, running at up to 28.8 kbps (baud).

Systems operator Chris McMurray, says he expects his service will do just fine. "I'm expecting at least 150 to 250 users. The ten lines are just to begin with... It's built in to the software to let me know when to start adding."

Dial-up access will be a local call to Haliburton or Gooderham.

KawarthaNet, by contrast, will be a community service — hookup will be $40 for text based service for the year, and $150 for graphic hookup. There will be no limit on time used, but users will be limited to an hour at a time, after which they have to dial in again.

KawarthaNet also says it will be setting up Web sites showcasing Peterborough, Haliburton, and Victoria county to the world.

McMurray isn't afraid that KawarthaNet is going to cut too far into his market.

"It's the same old same old," he says. "I've been telling people that when you get something for free or have to pay for it, which is going to give you more services, and which is going to get you better service? They're 'hopping' up here — it's all call forwarding to Peterborough... If there are five lines in Fenelon, and those are taken up there, you can forget about getting on."

Users in Haliburton county connecting to the net are currently somewhat limited in options. Some major commercial service providers offering full internet service do offer Canadian 1-800 numbers for hookup outside urban areas, but their rates generally reflect the greater cost of running the 1-800 lines. There are community freenets offering limited internet services (e-mail, usenet, usually some web and gopher access) in Toronto and Ottawa, but connection to either requires a long-distance call, and both services are currently swamped with the demand, making access slow and difficult.

Chris McMurray can be reached at Halco in Haliburton, 457-1590. KawarthaNet can be reached at 705-748-KNET.

High steppin' in the Highlands

by Andrew Milne

"It's an evening out, it's something you can both do together. It's a lot of fun."

That's Rick Elstone, vice-president of a square dancing club recently formed in Haliburton, talking about his new hobby.

The club, the Haliburton Twirlers, got its start about a year ago, when Elaine Jackson and her husband Bob brought a love of square dancing to the Highlands. The Jacksons took up the pastime 20 years ago while living in Oshawa. Recently moved to Haliburton, they found there was nowhere to dance.

Then they found Ed Giles, a caller (the guy who yells out the moves) living in Burnt River, who was willing to come to Haliburton to teach the dances, and things got moving.

Giles explains that square dancing evolved from the various folk dances of the English, the French, and the Scottish. Modern square dancing, the genre he teaches, started in the forties, after World War II, and had its heyday in the sixties and seventies.

"Modern dancing," says Giles, "uses more modern music, and it uses a lot of standardized calls — it's much more complicated and much more sophisticated than the old time dancing. But it's very standardized, so if you learn it here, and you go to Tokyo or Stockholm or Saudi Arabia, it's exactly the same thing, and it's taught exactly the same way, which is different than old time dancing. In old time the same call here and 50 miles down the road would be done differently. It became very localised."

There are over 6,000 "calls" or moves in square dancing. Giles' pupils this year will learn, between now and May, basic level dancing — about 50 calls. After that, says Giles, they should be quite comfortable at any community dance.

Dave Mowat, a high school teacher, is one recent convert to the pastime. After a year in the group, he says, he loves the form.

"My wife and I," he says, "just love to dance. We saw modern square dancing in Huntsville about four years ago, and liked it a lot."

Says Jackson "It's for the fun and fellowship and being able to get out with your husband or partner for an evening of fun and fellowship. It's something you can do as a couple. You meet the greatest people square dancing."

Jackson is pleased with the growth of the Haliburton club. Sixty-seven members, she says, after only one year, is quite impressive.

There are also local and national and international square dancing "conventions" — not so much competitions, says Jackson, as a place to meet for a day or a week of fun and fellowship.

"There's nothing else," says Elstone. "Except for motorcycling."

Square dance lessons are progressive in nature — the course is closed to new admissions for this year.

The Haliburton Twirlers keep things hopping at the HHSS gymnasium each Thursday evening.

There are over 6,000 calls or moves in modern square dancing. The local group will be learning about 50.

Square dancing is good fun, provides a good work out and offers an opportunity to meet people.

Pawprints in the ice cream

by Andrew Milne

So how do you know when there's been a bear in your freezer?

Pawprints in the ice cream.

Brad Archer arrived at work September 27 to find a mother bear and her two cubs feasting on the ice cream in his freezer.

Archer runs the Mill Pond Restaurant, on Highway 35 in Carnarvon. He stores some of the food in freezers in a shed next to the building.

The bears, apparently, smelled something they liked in there. They tore the door off, went in, pounded their way through the lid to the freezer, spread the contents all over the floor, and licked clean an entire bulk container of ice cream.

Archer has the look of mild amusement on his face that seems to come with such improbable and annoying events. "I don't know why they didn't just lift the lid to the freezer," he says. "It wasn't locked."

He's not sure if insurance will cover the damage.

Archer and employee Derek Little

From his/her perch high in the pine near the Mill Pond Restaurant, a wary bear keeps an eye on the gathering crowd of humans below. Brad Archer with his daughter on his shoulders, right, stand at the entrance to the shed where the mother and three cubs found a banquet.

arrived at work at 7:00 am, and the bears scrambled up a nearby white pine.

The MNR arrived around 9:30 am with traps, which they set under the tree.

The bears remained in the pine for the rest of the day, to the amusement of passersby, many of whom stopped to get a look or take pictures of the treed bears. Later that night, after their audience had left, the mother and one cub came down and entered the traps. The MNR brought back a third trap the next morning, and the second cub went right in. The three were then taken out of the area and released.

Dave Hamlin of the MNR, who set the traps, says the hard part in situations like this is to catch all three of the bears.

"Those are yearling cubs," he says. "The cubs can't survive without the mother at that age. So unless we catch all three, we just have to release them again."

(more on page 30)

Rubbing shoulders with bears

The normally secretive creatures, driven by the need to fatten up for hibernation have become, in some cases very brazen in their search for food. People have encountered them on their porches raiding the dog's dish, in their yards pilfering the fruit from apple trees and even on decks quaffing the contents of hummingbird feeders.

The fact that more bears are being seen, in places where they don't usually haunt, doesn't necessarily mean there are more bears.

The reason the bruins have become so brazen in their quest for sustenance is the fact that many of the natural "crops" they feed on were poor this year. Cherry trees, beech nuts, acorns from oak trees and other mast crops were marginal at best.

When nature doesn't provide for these animals, they will provide for themselves. And if that means rubbing shoulders with a few humans, so be it. The quest for a layer of fat to keep them nourished through several months of hibernation will overpower their natural fear of humans. Black bears are very adaptable.

... the obvious choice

Be assured, the bears are just passing through

(from page 29)

Bear reports are way up this year, due, probably, to poor berry and acorn crops this summer. Hamlin says he thinks the bears are coming into contact with humans more often in their search for food because they're feeding more on apple trees, and having to travel further in search of forage.

Most bear reports they receive, however, he says, aren't really a problem.

"The thing we try to get across is that most of the time when you see a bear they're just passing through," says Hamlin.

Hamlin also says people have to do their best to make sure they don't leave things around — food or garbage — that might attract the bears.

"People have got to learn," he says, "that this is bear country."

CHECKING IN WITH MAMA: One of the two cubs which spent Wednesday up a pine tree in Carnarvon, touches base with its mother. The three bears retreated to the relative safety of the tall pine after they were discovered re-arranging supplies in the Mill Pond Restaurant's storage shed.

Nuisance bear reports are already double last year

Office of the Ministry of Natural Resources are already double what they were last year.

Conservation officer Bob Gater says he expects bears to continue to be a problem until the cold weather forces them to den up for the winter.

One bear has been observed dining on apples from a tree a few yards from the Home Hardware store in Minden.

Several bears have been live-trapped and relocated to areas where they won't be as likely to get into trouble. Within the past couple of weeks, one bear was caught near the Wagon Wheel Motel and Restaurant, south of Minden and a sow and two cubs were live trapped at the Mill Pond Restaurant in Carnarvon. The Carnarvon trio, like all bears, love sweets. They broke into a storage building, trashed a freezer and devoured two industrial-sized tubs of ice cream. They were caught in the act when the restaurant owner and an employee arrived at 7 a.m.

The bears took shelter in a pine tree, drawing a crowd of curious bear watchers throughout the day.

When they were caught in the Ministry's live-traps, the bruins were transported about 25 miles and turned loose.

Gater said that on one occasion, a nuisance bear was trapped and relocated a few miles away, but within two days it was back at the same location. Once they find an easy source of food, bears can be very hard to keep away from that food source.

Whenever there is a close encounter between bears and people, there is the potential for serious trouble. In spite of their cute and cuddly appearance, black bears are capable of inflicting serious injuries or killing people. One swat from a powerful front paw can send the hardest of mountain men to the happy hunting ground. And, if you think you can outrun one of those lumbering bags of fur, forget it. The best human runners can cover a mile in four minutes. Black bears are capable of twice that speed. They have been clocked at a sustained speed of more than 30 miles an hour.

In a press release issued by the Minden MNR office,

Outdoors

by Jerry Grozelle

area technician Dave Hamlin says, "with their keen sense of smell, bears can detect an apple tree from several miles away."

He says the best way to prevent encounters with bears is to remove food attractants. Hamlin offered the following hints:

- Properly dispose of garbage and compost
- Pick fruit from trees and gardens
- Keep barbecues and picnic tables clean
- Wait until late fall to fill the bird feeder
- Keep pet food inside the house

"Once the attractant is removed, the bears will usually cease to visit your property," Hamlin says.

Hamlin points out that the mere presence of a bear is not cause to call the MNR or the local police force. As of September 25, the ministry has received 61 nuisance bear complaints.

"In the majority of cases, once the bear has been given time to move on and the attractant is immediately removed, we never have another complaint," Hamlin said.

Feeding of bears is discouraged by the MNR. Hamlin points out that well-meaning individuals who mistakenly think they are helping the animals need to understand that they are reinforcing artificial behaviour in the bears, a situation that could lead to an aggressive animal, which has to be destroyed.

"Feeding bears does not fulfil a humanitarian goal, as many believe," he says. "The black bear is an intelligent animal that has the ability to remember food locations and can become used to artificial sources (of food)."

He adds that artificially increasing bear numbers in any given area can lead to increased confrontation and aggression among bears competing for food.

Although several bears have been live-trapped and relocated, it is an option that the MNR prefers not to use. Bears that are taken from their home range and released in unfamiliar surroundings can have a hard time adjusting to the new location. They must find new food sources and deal with bears that already inhabit the area. The option is usually only considered when bears continue to frequent an area after the attractant has been removed.

Occasionally nuisance bears pose a threat to public safety. In that case, they may be destroyed.

"This is a measure of absolute last resort," said MNR area supervisor Stan Flemming, "and one contemplated only after all other options have been considered."

Such drastic measures have not been necessary so far this year.

The MNR stresses that prevention is the best option. For more information about preventing bear problems, contact your local MNR office.

Concerns raised over fire protection

Soyers Lake POA contributes $500 to Lions clinic

The environment, municipal services and concern over the state of local health care were among a number of items discussed at the annual meeting of the Soyers Lake Property Owners Association. The meeting was held September 2 at PineStone Resort.

Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Jeanne Anthon was welcomed by the association president David Pengelly. She told the gathering that executive members of the Soyers Lake association had met with members of council and municipal department heads. "I found this to be a very productive session and one that could serve as a model for future meetings," she reported. Anthon said the meeting provided an opportunity to improve the lines of communications between the two bodies.

The reeve described the current municipal situation as stable, noting there hadn't been a municipal tax increase in the past five years. However, she cautioned the members to either expect a reduction in services in the future, or an increase in taxes if the province follows through on its announced intention to cut support to municipalities. "There is only one tax pocket," Anthon reminded the listeners, "Yours and mine."

She brought the audience up to date on the rapidly changing medical services crisis in Minden. Anthon praised the community's Lions Club for their purchase of the medical clinic and predicted this would help bring a degree of stability to the medical situation. Later in the meeting, the Soyers Lake Association joined others in the area in providing financial support to the Lions Club for their clinic purchase. A donation of $500 received the unanimous backing of everyone in attendance.

Fire protection

Fire services continue to be a concern for the property owners around the lake. The Reeve reported that a number of meetings had been held which she said should lead to a fully co-ordinated fire service for the county. She also noted that discussion of the introduction of the 9-1-1 service is continuing, however it could take some time to implement and it will be costly. She said revised addressing will be required before the emergency call system can be operational.

Anthon had praise for the hard-working members of the Minden department and pointed out that the volunteers have completed the first phase of a water rescue training program. "All of our volunteers have full-time jobs. The training and fire calls interrupt their work and personal lives. We are glad they are there for us," she said.

A member of the audience asked if it wouldn't make sense for the Haliburton Fire Department to provide coverage for some of the Soyers Lake properties. He noted that his cottage was just 5 miles from the Haliburton firehall while the Minden hall is 13 miles away. Anthon said the committee reviewing fire services in the county is examining problems like this and for the moment the two municipalities have nothing to offer to make the provision of services an equitable "trade". She noted to purchase the coverage from Dysart would cost $6000 a year. She said removing that much money from the fire department's budget would create problems.

Committee heads meeting

Lew McCorriston, association secretary and the director responsible for external affairs, reported briefly on the meeting with the municipal department heads. He noted a full report on the discussions would be forwarded to the members in a future newsletter. Among the issue discussed was the provision that cottages be set back 30 meters from the high water mark. The setback applies to Soyers Lake since it is considered to be a cold water, lake trout body of water. He suggested if these provisions are followed through, in some areas cottage owners would end up looking at the back of existing cottages. He also pointed out that the setback does not stop a property owner from "mowing down all the trees" between the cottage and the lake, a practice that he noted would have more negative impact on the quality of the lake and subsequently the lake trout fishery.

Ross Partridge, responsible for environmental issues for the association, reported that the lake has maintained its level two classification with good water quality. Several members of the audience commented that in certain areas of the lake weed growth and "that slimy green stuff" seems to be on the increase, despite this positive report. Partridge noted that in some bays the water flow is a lot slower, which allows the excess growth to occur. The readings for water quality are taken from the deepest point in the lake where the current is stronger, which could provide one explanation for the difference in the water conditions.

The meeting was told it was verified that one pair of loons had nested on the lake, however there was no sighting of any young. Loon alert signs have been erected to warn boaters of the birds' presence. Partridge also suggested that a loon nesting platform might help ensure any future pairings resulting in off-spring. He noted that while more than one pair may be seen on the lake from time to time, these were likely visitors from Lake Kashagawigamog. Traditionally, Soyers Lake has had only a single nesting pair of loons.

The property numbering system is proceeding, Percy McBain told the meeting. He said the system being used should meet the standards associated with the 9-1-1 system and so it should easily fit with it when it is introduced. He pointed out however that before 9-1-1 can begin, all the roads would have to be named. He suggested that property owners take the initiative and propose names to the municipality for consideration. McBain noted that even if it is a while before 9-1-1 is introduced it would still be of value to have all roads around the lake clearly identified.

Prior to the close of the meeting, the executive for the coming year was elected. Serving for the coming term will be: president-David Pengelly; secretary-Lew McCorriston; treasurer-Neale Harris; and directors Lynda Campbell, Dennis Good, Jim Henderson, Percy McBain, Ross Partridge, Burt Tait, and Elizabeth Turner.

TSW water levels report

Lakes holding at average

On Monday, September 25, 1995, the lakes in Haliburton averaged 4.7% which was down 2.5% from a week before and continuing very close to the 20-year average for that date. Only minimum flow had been run for the week preceding, since sufficiently wet conditions occurred in the Kawarthas. The coming week more flow will be run from these lakes, because drier conditions are now affecting the Kawarthas. This is unlikely to cause these lakes to decline much faster than normal.

Most of the Kawarthas are getting down into their respective ranges and a flow cut along the Otonabee has been made to hold them from further decline.

Lake Simcoe-Couchiching levels declined about 3 centimetres over the week to September 25, 1995. At this level the lakes are still about two centimetres above rule curve, but soon to get to it without a significant rainfall. A flow cut was made on September 21 to reach a flow below the September normal of 25.1 m3/s (cubic metres per second).

Haliburton Real Estate Board hosts seminar

First-time home buyers get some expert advice

First-time home buyers obtained an excellent over-view of the procedure involved in purchasing a home last week. Sponsored by the Haliburton District Real Estate Board and held in conjunction with Ontario Home Week, the seminar drew over 30 participants. The meeting was held at the Haliburton Legion Tuesday evening.

President of the Haliburton District Real Estate Board Linda Baumgartner welcomed the participants. Realtor John Hincks served as host for the evening, introducing each of the speakers and fielding questions from the audience.

As a number of speakers pointed out, the purchase of a home is likely one of the biggest expenditures an individual or couple will make in their lives. By not knowing the processes that are required in home ownership, individuals can be disappointed, frustrated and sometimes confused by the torrent of paperwork and legalities. Those in attendance Tuesday came away with a better understanding of the system and will be able to approach the first purchase with a greater degree of confidence.

The speakers covered a number of topics including obtaining funding, down payments, acquiring a mortgage, realtors and the services they offer, selecting the property, the lawyer's role and other facets of home purchasing.

It was pointed out that most banks will help potential home owners determine what their budgets can carry in the way of mortgage payments. "Usually people are quite surprised when they discover how much is available through a mortgage," Betty Clennidning told the audience. She suggested that this is one of the most important first steps, because it immediately identifies the range of purchases available to the individual. The assessment takes into consideration a family's gross income and any major outstanding debts and weighs that against the cost of a mortgage and generalized cost expenses in maintaining a home (taxes, heat, hydro, water, sewer, etc.).

She noted that many financial institutions will issue a pre-arranged mortgage agreement at this point based on the family income.

Haliburton Realtor Charlie Smith then took the audience through a number of steps a potential buyer should go through in determining factors, other than price, that should be considered in making a home purchase. Among those he mentioned was location, new vs. resale, floor area requirements, year-round access, urban vs rural settings. He suggested first time buyers make lists of their needs and wants, realizing that usually not all can be met and some sacrifices will have to be made in selecting a home to purchase.

Smith suggested that scanning the ads in the local newspaper is a good place to get a feel for the market. He then suggested the buyer contact realtors in the area and advise them of the type of home they are looking for and the price range.

Smith noted that since in most cases it is the vendor who has engaged the realtor to sell the property, the realtor is in fact working for that person. "We are obligated to get the best price possible for the seller and to follow his or her instructions" (more on page 38)

An extra special..... Thank You

On Sunday evening, Hyland Crest had the drill of a lifetime! Thanks to the hard work and caring of the people listed below (and many, many more), a total evacuation of the Home ran smoothly and efficiently.

It is reassuring to know the community pulls together during an emergency and does whatever it takes to get the job done.

Please accept our apologies if you are not listed below and lent a hand. Your help was definitely appreciated.

tions," Smith said candidly. "We also have an obligation to the buyers as well," he noted. "We must not make any misrepresentations about the property, we must answer your questions completely and must treat the buyer fairly and ethically."

He noted it is possible for a buyer to purchase the services of a realtor as well.

In selecting a realtor, and he noted there are 81 agents registered with the Real Estate Board, he suggested the purchasers use the following criteria: make sure he or she is someone with whom they are comfortable and have a rapport, an individual who puts your's interest ahead of their own, a knowledgeable realtor and one with experience, ethics and empathy. He noted a good realtor will help guide the buyer through the purchase.

Haliburton lawyer Dave Bishop described the role of the lawyer in the transaction. He suggested that a lawyer should be consulted before signing an offer to purchase. Bishop said there are a number of legal requirements that must be met in any purchase and others which only apply to individual purchase. He suggested that the process should not be rushed with all details left to be worked out on the closing day. Early contact with the lawyer will help ease the process. "It may seem like a big deal and, after all, it is. You are about to make one of the biggest purchases of your life and we want to ensure you are happy with it on the day of closing."

Details were also offered on the role of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, home inspections, additional costs and other services available to home buyers.

For those unable to attend the seminar, the Ontario Real Estate Association has published a booklet entitled How to Buy Your First Home. The booklet outlines in detail the items covered during the seminar and provides other sources of information for the home buyer. The book is available free of charge at any real estate office in the Haliburton Highlands.

A seminar held last Tuesday evening at the Haliburton Legion explained the intricacies of purchasing a home. Aimed at first time buyers, the evening was sponsored by the local real estate board with participation from a number of local experts in real estate, legal and banking fields. Realtor Charlie Smith is seen here explaining some of the items to consider before making a home purchase.

$1000.00 winner

Mountain Lake cottager Shirley Thompson was the September winner in the monthly Lions Club Luxury Draw. "I've never won anything like this in my life," the Aurora resident said as Lions Club representative Maurice Boyd presented her with a cheque for $1000. Second prize of $500 in this month's draw was won by George and Eileen Minors of Minden Lake. The Luxury Draw is a raffle with prizes awarded throughout the year. The draws take place each month at the Lions Club Thursday night bingo.

Date set for Sled Dog Derby

The Minden Sled Dog Derby Committee announced recently that the 1996 edition of the world largest limited-class speed race for sled dogs will be held on January 20 and 21 on Minden's Main Street.

Thanks to the continuing support of the race sponsor, Martin Pet Foods Inc. of Elmira, Ontario, the 12th running of the Minden Techni-Cal Challenge will again offer the largest sled dog racing purse in North America outside of Alaska.

In addition to the purse of $25,000, Martin Pet Foods, the makers of Techni-Cal Dog Food, is providing $17,000 in promotional support for the event, for a total commitment of $42,000.

Race Governor Val Lougheed expressed her appreciation of Martin's and their continuing support for the annual race. "The people at Martin Pet Foods have been truly supportive both of our race and of the sport of sled dog racing in general," she said. "They've helped us make this the best race in the world for both spectators and mushers."

This winter's Minden Techni-Cal Challenge will once again feature up to 75 teams competing in the eight- and four-dog classes. The Main Street start and finish ensure spectators a ring-side view of the exciting action provided by these outstanding athletes, both human and canine. The kid-and-mutt race, which is held after the official heats on Saturday, is a treat for the young and old.

Everyone is also welcome to visit the dog-lot, where the trucks are parked, to talk with the mushers and look over the dogs and puppies.

The two days of racing will offer other attractions for spectators, including the chance to try out the Scandinavian sport of kick-sledding. Drifter, the race's human sized-husky mascot, will be on hand to greet visitors, especially the children. "Catch The Drift", a country-rock song about the derby written and recorded by local musicians will be the theme song for the weekend once again.

All these features ensure the continuing special place the Minden Techni-Cal Challenge holds as both a major event on the sled-dog racing circuit and a unique winter weekend for the whole family.

Funding cuts being felt Forum will focus on changes in child care

The Child Care Forum of Haliburton County in cooperation with the Victoria County Child Care Forum is hosting an information session on The Future of Child Care.

The meeting is scheduled for 7 pm on Wednesday, October 4. It will be held at the Haliburton United Church (lower level).

The meeting will focus on the impact of the recent provincial government announcements on child care in our area. Ultimately any changes to child care affects the larger community. Child care is one of the common elements to all forms of recovery.

Almost all employees (current and future) require affordable, stable child care.

Accessible, affordable child care is a necessity to economic recovery in all communities, particularly so in Haliburton County. Families differ a great deal, so do their child care needs. Families need to keep as many options as possible open and maybe explore new ones. Our community cannot afford to lose any form of child care currently available.

For further information, please contact Margaret Johnston Jones, Community Child Care Developer at (705) 457-1888 at (705) 878-1444.

Thanksgiving on their minds

Crafts were a day earlier this week due to the shoe sale Tuesday. Maggie Cook is quilting, Harold Osborne is busy at his wood working. Ken Anderson was doing wood working as well. Edith brittain was making Winnie Barnum, Louise Bishop and Bertha Hughes were making centrepieces. Corinne Booneville was sewing decorative pillows. We have all kinds of talent in our craft room. In the evening several residents gathered for that popular game of euchre.

Tuesday morning Rev. Peter Walford Davis conducted Chapel Service. Many residents made shoe purchases from the Comfort Shoes who had their wares displayed in the auditorium.

Wednesday morning, it was exorcising with Janice. Later some folks took part in bingo while others played crockinole. In the evening, music was played by Everett Fearrey.

Thursday morning started with fitness, followed by a visit from Joan Bunn and Rhonda Francis with their dogs. The ladies from Kinmount Legion held a lovely tea party in the afternoon.

Friday morning, Mary Wilson read to the folks. Later the Volunteer Tea was held in the auditorium. A big hand to Llyn Shirley, Dietary supervisor and her assistants, Carol Martin, Phyllis Sutherland, and L y n n Stevens. They prepared a delicious lunch which was so tastefully displayed. Dottie Muirhead received recognition as volunteer of the year. Dottie gives her all and then some to Hyland Crest. She sends a birthday card to every resident on their day, congratulations Dottie. To date, we have about 300 volunteers.

Lenore Troupe was in during the week to take individual residents walking.

Janette Donnelly and her dog Rusty paid a visit on Saturday. Olga Ellis played piano music Saturday afternoon.

Estella Burch read Sunday morning. Sunday evening, due to unforeseen circumstances, everyone had to be evacuated from the home. I haven't heard one complaint from a resident yet. In fact, I get the feeling that some of them enjoyed the excitement once they were safely removed from the building.

September W.I. meeting

Fourteen members of Minden Women's Institute met on September 20 at the home of Mary Wilson with Jean Cox, President, welcoming all. The roll call of what nutritious foods one can buy for a loonie was held with everyone giving an answer. We heard that we had won a special exhibit prize at the Haliburton County Fair.

Plans were made for president Jean Cox and secretary Mary Cox to attend the Area Convention in October. Mary Cox, district director gave her report and mentioned that many W.I. members offer bed & breakfast homes and lists are available. She also mentioned that Big Buck euchre games will be held at Burnt River. Four members will attend the games sponsored by Victoria East W.I. and supplies will go with the members.

Irene Moore gave her report on cards sent since June and the collections for the card fund and pennies for friendship were taken. Mary Wilson then gave an amusing verse. Convenor Irene Moore informed us on some garlic facts - that it is very good for us. She mentioned that we should be very careful reading food labels as they don't always say what we think and she continued with how many of our brilliant graduates have gone to the U.S.A. She concluded with some facts on our anatomy which puzzled us.

You should get your 'flu shot as soon as it becomes available.

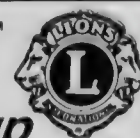

Keep an account of your volunteer hours that a true report can go in at the end of the year.

Everyone enjoyed the lunch and tea or coffee and a chat with other members after the adjournment with thanks to hostess Mary Wilson. The next meeting will be held October 18 at the home of Mary Cox at 2 p.m. and we welcome all ladies.

Out to lunch

Now and then, you may have a drink before or during work. But when you're under the influence of alcohol at work, you're not at your best.

The alcohol will slow you down. It can reduce your coordination and performance, leaving you out to lunch for the rest of the day. So follow these tips.

- Tip 1. Separate the occasions when you drink from work time. This will make it easier to pass up a drink before work or a friendly invitation to drink on the job.
- Tip 2. Make the healthier choice at lunch, even if others are drinking. Order dealcoholized or .5% beer. Or choose mineral water, milk or juice.

Make every drink a smart choice.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT NOTICE

PROPOSED BRIDGE REPLACEMENT STUDY HIGHWAY 7033 - IRONDAL RIVER WORK PROJECT 434-89-01

The Ministry of Transportation Ontario (M.T.O.) has initiated a study to examine potential replacement of the existing Bailey Bridge over the Irondale River, on Highway 7033. The Irondale Bridge is located 0.34 km south of the west junction of Highway 503 and Highway 7033. This project is located in the Township of Snowdon within the County of Haliburton.

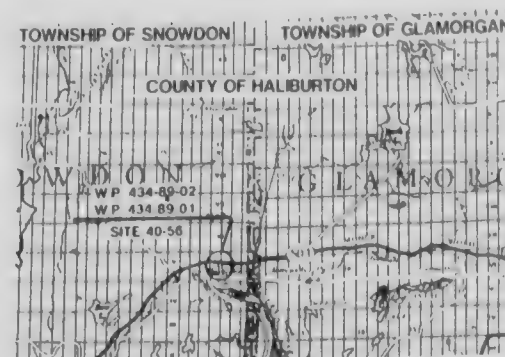

This new single lane bridge is proposed to be constructed to: improve safety; improve driving conditions; reduce future maintenance; remove the 9 tonne load restriction; and provide increase flood clearance. Subject to the final outcome of the study, the Ministry is proposing to remove the existing Bailey Bridge and constructing a new single lane bridge and approaches on a new horizontal and vertical alignment.

The study follows a Class Environmental Assessment process, approved for highway projects of this type. An Environmental Study Report will be submitted to the Ministry of the Environment and Energy, and will be available for public viewing; a further public notice will be published at that time. You are encouraged to contact M.T.O. project staff at any time if you have questions or concerns about this project. If you feel, after consulting with M.T.O. staff, that serious environmental concerns remain unresolved, it is your right to request that the project be subject to the formal Environmental assessment Review and approval process, possibly including a formal hearing. The decision rests with the Minister of the Environment and Energy.

We are interested in any comments you and your group may have about this project. If you wish to be involved in this study or receive further information, please contact us. Your comments will be maintained as a public data base and will be kept on file or used during the study and, unless otherwise requested, may be included in the study documentation which is made available for public review. Any further notification by M.T.O. shall only be provided to those who have expressed an interest in being further involved.

Short-term gain, long-term pain

The federal government's mindless drive to cut expenditures will reverberate throughout society long after the old politicians are gone. Thus, as I reported last week, by amputating top scientific research facilities that collect information about our environment, we deliberately blind ourselves to what may lie ahead.

Newfoundland fishing communities can testify to the long-term deleterious repercussions of decisions made for short-term political and economic benefit. A chartered accountant once told me the smartest companies project the most pessimistic scenario for the next year and then build an action plan on that to maximize their options and survival. That's sound advice in all other spheres.

These days when politicians, the media and business people inspire a low level of popular confidence, scientists continue to enjoy high public regard. So, when eminent scientists suggest that global ecological degradation represents a threat to human survival exceeded only by all out nuclear war, one would think their warning would be taken very seriously. Yet, governments ignore them.

The main excuse is a lack of money and the uncertainty of the hazards. But we already spend over $14 billion a year to counter military dangers that are far more speculative and uncertain than environmental threats. We support an army we hope we will never use, yet few begrudge or question the cost. Those calling for urgent environmental action are often depicted by their detractors and reported by the media as "fuzzy-headed tree huggers", "eco-terrorists", "urban do-gooders", "anti-progress", "anti-people" and "neo-Luddites." But for years, the motivation for the environmental movement has been the work and claims of scientists.

Scientists are understandably cautious when they make projections into the future. Their ability to describe the world around us is not matched by sufficient knowledge to predict the future and prescribe solutions. So their conclusions and generalizations must be tentative and subject to change as more information is acquired.

Nevertheless, the planet has been undergoing such a massive transformation in this century that the detrimental consequences are undeniable. By now, the problems are familiar, from exploding populations to loss of topsoil and biodiversity, toxic pollution and atmosphere change. For decades, leading scientists like Rene Dubos, Margaret Mead, Paul Erlich, Carl Sagan and E.O. Wilson have sounded the alarm.

Reflections

by David Suzuki

In 1988 researchers who gathered in Toronto warned of the hazards of rapid global warming caused by increased levels of greenhouse gasses contributed by human activity. An abrupt rise in average planetary temperature will submerge large parts of marine coastlines as warmer oceans expand. Terrestrial and marine ecosystems will change radically and weather extremes will increase.

There are immense implications for human health, agriculture and economics. The Toronto delegates called for a 20 per cent reduction in 1988 levels of carbon dioxide in 15 years.

In 1990, over 700 climate experts gathered in Geneva for a meeting of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. More than 700 scientists and delegates from more than 70 nations signed a document urging governments to take immediate action to curb carbon dioxide production. Global warming as a real possibility has not been controversial within the scientific community for years, yet it continues to be reported as if it is still in dispute. By giving both "sides" equal time in the name of "fairness" and "balance" the media actually distort the scientific discussion.

In November 1992, the Union of Concerned Scientists released a Warning to Humanity, part of which outlines the catastrophic potential of global warming and urged immediate action to cut carbon dioxide. It was signed by more than half of all living Nobel prize winners, yet it was completely ignored by most media in Canada.

In February, 1994, 58 national academies of science, which represent most of the world's top scientists, released a report reiterating the warning. They too were ignored by the media.

Last week, the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change took a major step by declaring that there is enough evidence that heat waves, the cluster of hottest years in the last two decades, forest fires, water shortages and rising ocean temperature and sea level are not merely fluctuations in natural cycles. There is more than a 90 per cent probability they are being caused by increased levels of human-generated greenhouse gases.

When confronted by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, society responded immediately and heroically. Stanford's Paul Erlich says we have a million ecological Pearl Harbors going off at once. When as cautious a group as eminent scientists urgently calls for action, what does it take to respond?

Acid rain report

The following report on acid precipitation was recorded at the Ministry of Environment and Energy site at Dorset.

This report covers the period August 26 to September 26:

August 26: 5.0 mm of rain with a pH of 4.04
 August 30: 9.8 mm of rain with a pH of 4.18
 August 31: 10.9 mm of rain with a pH of 4.88
 September 1: 9.1 mm of rain with a pH of 5.09
 September 2: 4.2 mm of rain with a pH of 4.88
 September 6: 6.8 mm of rain with a pH of 4.23
 September 7: 3.2 mm of rain with a pH of 4.54
 September 13: 5.3 mm of rain with a pH of 3.54
 September 16: 42.6 mm of rain with a pH of 4.21
 September 19: 3.8 mm of rain with a pH of 4.41
 September 21: 8.4 mm of rain with a pH of 4.33
 September 22: 8.3 mm of rain with a pH of 4.85
 September 25: 2.0 mm of rain with a pH of 4.24
 September 26: 2.0 mm of rain with a pH of 4.11

Environmental damage to lakes and streams is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH readings of less than 4.7. pH readings less than 4.0 are considered serious.

The Alton Women's Institute members visited the home of Eleanor and Merv Bunker on September 26 for a pot luck lunch and old time meeting. They enjoyed a tour of the miniatures made by Merv.

Quite a few on the sick list this week - good wishes to Jean Marsh, Edith Cole, Bill Harrison, Barb Todd, Harry Cowen and Gladys Reid - hope you all feel much better soon.

Audrey and Bob Vick visited with Blanch and Clark Miller of Perkinsfield for a few days recently.

Club 35 euchre game winners for September 25 included Jean Hewitt with most lone hands, Betty Harper and Bill Durkin with high scores, Olive Jones, Pat Scadden and Betty Skinner. Special awards went to Pat Scadden and Betty Skinner and the 50-50 draw to Ruth Durkin. Everyone is welcome to attend these weekly games held Mondays at 7:30 p.m. No partners required. Next Wheels to Meals dinner is October 10 at 12 noon.

Recent guests with Dorothy McElwain were Mike, Maureen, Josh and Dan McElwain from Millbrook and Trent McElwain from Pickering.

Sincere sympathy to the families and friends of the late Autumn Watson and Kenneth Dawson who passed away recently.

Weekly winners at St. Paul's Monday afternoon games on September 25 were Elli Langpohl, Betty Hardy and most lone hands to K.T. Parker. The draw went to Joan Mackenzie and these games start at 1:30 weekly with everyone welcome.

Stanhope Bridge winners on September 26 included Barry Cowling followed by Fred Heald and Clem Cassidy. Two little slams were bid and made and prize money awarded to Fred Heald, Betty Schlotter, Mary Stevenson and Barry Cowling. The games begin each Tuesday at 1 o'clock at Stanhope Library.

Winners at the Noble weekly euchre games on September 27 were Pat Rousselle and Pat Marsh and Tom Milne with most lone hands. These games begin weekly at 7:30 p.m. and all are welcome.

Lots of moonshots at Stanhope bid euchre games on September 27, Ida Young, Jim Skinner, Elsie Henderson, Jean Randell, Margaret Fletcher (2), Betty Skinner, Grace Dixon, Stan Hill and Milton Fletcher. Winners for the night included Grace Dixon, Ken Wallace, Stan Cline, Carol Duncan, Margaret Fletcher, Ida Young, Ida Grif-fin and hidden score, Marg McAfee.

Called in: Kountry Kitchen sale at Minden Legion on Saturday October 7 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. RCL Branch 636 seniors have planned a trip to St. Jacob's on Thursday October 19. For tickets and information call 286-2692 or 286-3269. They are also planning an overnight trip to the Festival of Lights in Niagara Falls on November 18 and 19. Sound like great outings.

The leaves have become very colourful for the Studio Tour weekend and hopefully, they will last until Thanksgiving. We've seen lots of buses through our area on their annual tours.

AT REST

WATSON,
Autumn Elizabeth

Passed away peacefully at her home in Minden on Tuesday, September 26, 1995. In her 66th year. Loving wife of Leo Watson. Dear mother of Cheryl and her husband Bruce Goble, Katherine and her husband Ken Van De Velde, Larry and his wife Penny, Wendy and her husband Terry Sutcliffe, Terry and his wife Brenda, Laurie and her husband Dennis McKee and predeceased by Bryan. Loving grandmother of twenty-two grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Dear sister of Sheila Clarke, Shirley Colliss and predeceased by Kenneth Balkwill. She will be missed by her family and friends. Mrs. Watson rested at the Gordon A. Monk Funeral Home, 127 Main Street, Minden from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. on Thursdays. Funeral Services were held in the Chapel on Friday, September 29, 1995 at 11 a.m. Cremation to follow. Memorial donations to the Cancer Society or to the Charity of your choice would be appreciated.

IN MEMORIAM

KIMBLE - Perry Allan: In loving memory of our son, brother, Dad, uncle and husband, who left us September 20, 1992. We often lie awake at night When the world is fast asleep, And take a walk down memory lane With tears upon our cheeks. The years we had with Perry Are worth their weight in gold, The laughter and love he gave us Are still ours to have and hold. It seems only yesterday That he was just a boy... But memory is a gift from God That death cannot destroy. Perry's cheery smile and a wave of his hand He has travelled into an unknown land, He has left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be since he lingers there. "As sorrowful, yet always rejoicing" (II Cor. 6:10) Lovingly cherished in our hearts forever, Mother & Dad, Joshua, Beverly, Timothy, Amanda, Shannon, Harold, Emily, Kelly, Jasmin Lee & Cody.
